SUMMIT FURNITURE

California casual meets British sophistication in the new Linley collection for Summit ($5,000 to $8,500). The series marks the first time David Linley's brand has created outdoor furnishings, and the line includes a sofa, a coffee table, and a chair. Each seat has a teak frame and cushions that come in an array of fabrics. 831.375.7811, www.summitfurniture.com

RANCHO SANTA FE, CALIF.

Veladora

Old-world design and modern art converge at Rancho Valencia Resort & Spa's restaurant Veladora, where Damien Hirst's Imploration, a work made of butterfly wings, graces one wall. The 65-seat restaurant offers a menu of locally sourced ranch-style fare and is part of a broader renovation of the property. The project's last touches were completed in April. 858.759.6246, www.ranchovalencia.com

NEW YORK CITY

DMITRIY & CO.

A French mattress stitch distinguishes most of the upholstered items in Dmitriy & Co.'s recently introduced Brampton Collection ($4,200 to $14,500), including the Brampton bed (from $12,000), whose base weaves a cashmere-covered platform and a walnut frame. The handcrafted bed, like all of the line's pieces, is made to order in the company's Manhattan studio. 212.243.4800, dmitriyco.com

LOS ANGELES

KELLY WEARSTLER

The South Carolina-born designer has a beachfront home in Malibu, so it is only fitting that she has her own line of surfboards. Part of her Mulholland series, which includes a desk and coasters, are boards (from $9,500 apiece) fashioned from woods such as cherry, koa, and ash. Each is a work of art—and completely functional. 323.895.7880, www.kellywearstler.com

HAILEY, IDAHO

Rocky Mountain Hardware

Those who visit the 20-year-old company's new 1,800-square-foot showroom in Ketchum, Idaho, will find not only its hand-cast bronze architectural hardware, but also its various lighting designs ($2,678 to $13,722), including those in the former bank building's entry (above). 888.788.2013, www.rockymountainhardware.com [S.B.]
