Italian Luxury Linens

Bespoke craftsmanship

It is always nice to start a new season with fresh crisp linens and Dea are the perfect choice as they innovatively mix a traditional style with a modern touch, creating perfect solutions to suit the interior décor of your particular yacht. The best quality raw materials, original in-house designs and bespoke service make every Dea creation unique and refined. The workmanship can be seen in the hemstitches, hand-embroidered French knots and sateen stitches, all utilized harmoniously in a way that makes the Dea style exclusive and distinguishable. Choose between different fabrics (cotton linen and percale, cotton sateen, cotton voile and cotton makò terry), a wide selection of fabric thread counts (from 200 TC to 1,000 TC), and a vast range of colors (about 40 colors). Sleep in style.

Teak at its peak

The summit of deck furniture

Undoubtedly one of our favorite deck furniture suppliers, we were delighted when National Marine Suppliers' Interiors Department suggested we include Summit Furniture. The brand that has become synonymous with yacht furniture is internationally recognized for its exemplification of excellence. Dedicated to the finest in design, materials and craftsmanship, Summit collaborates with distinguished American and European designers to offer beautiful handcrafted teak furniture for contract, residential and marine environments. The light sinuous touch in their latest collaboration with the English studio of Linley Design is finished with a stainless-steel dovetail element that embellishes the feet of each piece. When striving for the top you have to reach for the Summit.

Breakfast on board

Bright and early...

Fitfully rested after a calm night in a secluded anchorage, you breathe in the fresh salt air and settle down to the most important meal of the day as the sunlight glints off the bright shine of this silver table arrangement by Robbe & Berking. Breakfast could hardly be more splendid. As they build and restore of classic wooden yachts, Robbe & Berking have a sympathetic touch for the marine environment and understand that slavish attention to detail is what separates heirloom quality piece from the rest. To this end, the fifth generation of the brand founded in 1874 still steadfastly adheres the philosophy of Robert Berking: "If we reduce the craftsmanship qualities of our company to the limited possibilities of rational series production, the formal loss would be huge. Key skills are lost as quality is reduced. This is not our world." As with each piece in the company's exclusive portfolio of silverware handmade by German silversmiths, the Breakfast Service may be individualized and engraved to perfectly compliment your yacht. National Marine Suppliers tell us that well over half of the 200 largest yachts on the planet are fitted out with Robbe & Berking silver, is yours?

Did you know?

Freshly refined silver has the best reflection characteristics of all metals—over 99.5 percent of visible light is reflected. The noble metal is also one of the finest metals when it comes to its physics and chemistry: It is the most conductive of all metals in terms of heat and electricity.
